

This is how we began.

The John Stoddard Cancer Center opened on December, 6, 1991 at Iowa Methodist marking a significant milestone.

It is the first cancer center in central Iowa to house all radiation oncology and ancillary services in one location. This progressive concept is evidence of our long-standing commitment to meet the changing needs of those we serve with healthcare excellence.

This is who we are.

Superior quality cancer treatment demands a comprehensive regional treatment facility.

The John Stoddard Cancer Center has taken its place on the Iowa Methodist campus to complement the holistic patient-focused approach. Like a magnet, it pulls together all facets of cancer care: the professionals, programs, technology and services necessary to provide effective treatment and continue leading the fight. After all, "We're in this fight together."
